Game Description:

The Dwarven Kingdom of Marram lay perilously close to war with neighboring Folgore, and its ruler the wily King Horgsant III had little regard for the coming conflagration. Leaving his city defence largely to the Dwarven Legions, he decided instead to seek his fortune among the new settlers of the Frontier. When Horgsant III pledged his name to a mining company in search of precious metals, his subject city fell into the hands of greedy opportunists who set about converting Marram and its thriving trade with Folgore into a so-called FREE port, and turned it into a Free-Market port. The strict regulations of the port and the unfriendly locals were too much of an obstacle for Horgsant, and he hastily had the mayor assassinated and replaced his protected trade route with a desert road to the west. Unfortunately, his troops were too late to prevent the transition, and the city and its trade was abruptly left to fend for itself.

Folgore initially welcomed the new arrivals, but now the Dwarven mines and trade route were choked with caravans of foragers, slavers, and pack mules. The growing hordes of caravans have seriously interfered with the daily lives of residents in Folgore. Folgore is a strange combination of medieval Imperialists and Iron Age Punics, which makes life dangerous for Horgsant III's subjects. Did I mention the archers?

The Old Parish Church of St Mary, Connaught, and St Lawrence, Sligo The Old Parish Church of St Mary, Connaught and St Lawrence is a former Roman Catholic Church in Sligo town, in the west of Ireland. Designed by James Dalton in 1822-23 and completed in 1824, it became the burial place of the Kings and Queens of England and Ireland until the Second World War. It remained in use as a parish church until 2006. Early history Sligo had been founded by Colmcille around the year 579 as the centre of the Uí Fidgente kingdom of north-east Leinster. A Roman Catholic church had been built by about 1080 and a replacement, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, was begun in 1247, but these were replaced in the 15th century by the current structure, which was designed and built by local architect James Dalton. While the Gothic parish church was being constructed, the town's population dwindled and the air raid shelter remains in the crypt were constructed. The work on the church was completed in 1824. It was built in the Romanesque style, with a
