@nintendo.*@ninten//Q: running a users code from another folder gives an error in python I am running a python script from a folder 'a' in the following way ./a/script.py But in this when I open the'script.py' the following error is occurred, NameError: name 'b' is not defined I have also tried with ../a/a/script.py But still the error is occurred when running the file'script.py'. Can anyone tell me from where the error is occurred. Regards, Sam A: Your script runs a.py inside that its global variables a and b are defined. You can either redefine a or b before running it: from a import a, b a.a() b.a() Or simply run from a as follows: from a import a, b a.a() b.a() Q: Why spring jsp pages default body data In which file in spring 3.x when jsp pages are loaded code like content here its body's data is printed with every page why this is? I want to print only the first view content of browser's body tag. I tried to set the body tag null, loaded url to that url having some content, but when its echo the value its printed as well. Where can I set the default values? A: This is expected. From the javadoc (plain text version) All values from an HttpServletRequest are available to JSP pages, and values from an HttpServletResponse are available to JSP pages as well. However, other values are not available without further setup. Resolved values are available the moment the request and response are created. ![(brforeignmcrev73229-0228){#sp1.223} ![(brforeignmcrev73229-0229){#sp2.224} ![(brforeignmcrev73229-0230){#sp3.225}

Q: How to access images loaded through Glide in My Fragment? I'm using the official glide image library (I created the whole activity in which I'll have multiple fragments. I'm facing a problem while accessing my images. I declared the global variables as I did at this example: When I try to access the images from my MyFragment, I'm getting this error: Cannot cast from 'com.bumpteck.glide.Request' to 'com.bumpteck.glide.loader.ImageLoader'. I think its because I have to use the variables from the global class. So, what should I do? How can I access the images loaded through Glide in MyFragment? A: In order to use the image from ImageLoader in your fragment you have to implement a Presenter as in the example you shared, but using the ImageRequest, not the ImageLoader: public class YourFragment extends Fragment { ... @Override public void onCreate(Bundle savedInstanceState) { super.onCreate(savedInstanceState); yourImageRequest.setListener(new RequestListener() { @Override public boolean onException(Exception e, String model, Target target, boolean isFirstResource) { // Handle exception here return false; } @Override public boolean onResourceReady(GlideDrawable resource, String model, Target target, boolean isFromMemoryCache, boolean isFirstResource) { // load the image and update the imageView
